Celebrity staging designer, Leia T. Ward knows what takes to transform luxury homes for top value. With a client list including projects for actor Bruce Willis, NY Knicks star RJ Barrett and the television show This Old House, powerhouse stager Leia T. Ward has been busy at work staging the most sought-after estates in NY and CT ranging from $5-$25 Million. The founder and principal designer of LTW Design is the secret ingredient to selling a house in NY and CT, transforming the most sought-after homes into listings buyers can't resist. By strategically bringing in sleek furniture, painting walls, and styling coffee tables, she magically wipes away a home's former life and sets it up to immediately woo high-end buyers. LTW Design's expansive inventory of furniture, accessories and artwork and the firm's strategic interior marketing approach helps to sell homes swiftly and at top market value. No detail is too small, even flying in top architecture + interior photographers to capture spaces just right. Most importantly, Leia gets results for sellers that are simply unheard of. The last five luxury homes she recently staged went to multiple offers the first week and sold in 10 days. Homeowners are clamoring to get on her client list; she's truly the missing puzzle piece in any real estate team.
